

STANFORD UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS

2022 SUMMER SESSION - ECON 111: Money & Banking online course

PREREQUISITE FORM FOR VISITING STUDENTS

Non-Stanford students who want to enroll in Stanford Economic courses during the 2022 summer session must meet the prerequisites required for ECON 111: Money and Banking. The prerequisites are ECON 50 and ECON 52. The equivalent courses are intermediate microeconomics and intermediate macroeconomics. Introductory courses will not be recognized as prerequisites. Non-Stanford prerequisite courses are reviewed for similarity in coverage and analytical level to the prerequisites offered at Stanford, as judged from the course descriptions, syllabi, textbooks, and a copy of your transcript that lists the courses and grades.

To receive a permission code to enroll in ECON 111, complete this form and email it with the required documentation to Laura Quirarte, lauraq@stanford.edu.

NAME:

DATE:

EMAIL:

SUID:

What is the name of the university where you completed the prerequisite courses?

What prerequisite courses have you completed that are similar to Econ 50 and Econ 52?

Course 1:

Textbook used:

Course 2:

Textbook used:

Any additional comments or explanations?

You must include the syllabus for each prerequisite course that you completed.

You must include a copy of your transcript (unofficial transcript will be accepted).

Submit this completed form and required documentation to the Department of Economics Undergraduate Student Services Officer:

Laura Quirarte
Department of Economics
lauraq@stanford.edu